

Dues Committee
Annual Report
May 6, 2018

This year, the Dues Committee continued its mission of never turning away someone due to the inability to pay our dues. As last year, the committee continued to meet via electronic media, to allow for quicker response time to personal requests.

The role of the Dues Committee is two-fold; first we are charged with fulfilling the budgetary requirements of the community, second, we are charged with keeping a sympathetically open mind to the needs of each individual member of our community. This two-fold responsibility creates a challenge for the committee to balance those charges. It is especially difficult when the committee considers that the various services and programming that the institution offers are both funded by the dues raised by the membership (budgetary requirements) and attended by the population of the community (individual member needs). We, at the Dues Committee, believe that we have carried out these responsibilities very well, and will continue to do so into the future. As always, the Dues Committee is available for your comments, or to consider your personal needs at any time. We are always here for you, our community members.

Respectfully Submitted,
Kevin Miller
Chair
